ANNUAL REPORT - 1979

The major undertaking of the Department of Insurance was an extensive inquiry into the validity of the auto insurance industry's long-unchallenged use of such characteristics as age, sex, place of residence and marital status in the computation of premium rates.

Opening a public hearing on the subject, the commissioner stated:

"For some time now it has been a matter of concern to me, particularly because of the tremendous inflation in the cost of auto insurance, whether the existing rating systems are distributing the cost of insurance in an equitable manner without unfair discrimination.

"It is undisputed that the rating systems impose higher burdens of cost on drivers who live in urban areas and on young drivers under 25, especially unmarried males. The very highest-rated classification is the unmarried, 17 year-old male, who pays almost four times as much for his insurance as someone without those disabling characteristics of callow youth, maleness and bachelorhood. The burden on the class of driver is further enlarged if he lives in one of the high-rated urban territories, and he may pay 10 times as much as a driver in the lowest-rated territory is charged, although both may have unblemished records behind the wheel

... "The need to determine what is fair in rate-making has become even more urgent in recent years because of the statutory requirement that all automobiles carry certain specified amounts of insurance. The State thus compels the purchase of insurance by rich and poor alike but the existing rating systems seem to have a regressive effect in that they place the heaviest burden of costs on those least able to afford it—the young and residents of our largest cities.

"It must be kept in mind, too, that the trend of auto use today is that of necessity, rather than of luxury, while the trend in classification has been toward overrefinement. These are trends that appear to be moving apart in terms of what is fair.

"... I would also like to emphasize that the unique problems of our senior citizens, which have long been a preoccupation of this department, will come under the scrutiny of this hearing."

The hearing extended from January 24 to December 20 and required 89 sessions, in which the commissioner and deputy commissioner, along with supporting technical staff, were personally involved. The commissioner sat as the hearing officer.

The commissioner approved the new Personal Auto Policy developed by the Insurance Services Office to replace the Family Automobile Policy for use beginning in 1980.

At year-end, the commissioner announced his approval of rate increases for the ISO and seven independent companies to take effect at varying times in 1980. ISO received approval of a 11.9 per cent increase, which was also made applicable to the New Jersey Automobile Insurance Plan (Assigned Risk).

The commissioner approved an increase of 14.5 per cent in commercial auto insurance for the Insurance Services Office, the first in more than two and a half years. The increase affected all commercial vehicles except longhaul trucks.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Regulations establishing minimum standards for the sale of individual health insurance policies were proposed and were described by the commissioner as "probably the toughest, most stringent, to be found anywhere in the country."

The commissioner noted that the regulations mandate minimum benefits that must be offered by the companies and place new controls on both companies and agents to eliminate abusive, "hard-sell" tactics—such as persuading insureds to buy duplicate coverage and making false or misleading statements—that senior citizens, especially, have complained of.

They also would give the Department of Insurance greater control over rates by establishing procedures for determining whether the benefits offered by a policy are reasonable in relation to the premium, by providing for an annual review of the cost-benefit reasonableness, and setting acceptable loss ratios for particular kinds of coverage.

Penalties for violations of the regulations would range from maximum fines of $2,000 for each violation to suspension or revocation of the license of an insurance company, agent, broker, or solicitor. In addition, companies would be subject to an equivalent fine imposed on any of their agents for violations.

Before final adoption, the regulations are subject to legislative oversight.

An average increase of 7.5 per cent in Blue Cross rates for small group and individual subscribers was approved, the first increase in more than a year and a half.

MALPRACTICE INSURANCE

The cost of physicians' and surgeons' malpractice insurance started to come down in 1979.

The commissioner approved a rate revision for the New Jersey Medical Inter-Insurance Exchange of New Jersey, the company formed by the Medical Society of New Jersey in 1977 and the New Jersey Medical Malpractice Reinsurance Association that includes an overall average 8.3 per cent decrease in premiums.

In addition, he approved a revision filed by the Health Care Insurance Exchange, a company formed by the New Jersey Hospital Association in 1976, which reduced by varying percentages the rates for doctors employed by hospitals and insured under the hospitals' own malpractice policies.

These decreases for doctors follow a reduction in 1978 in the cost of malpractice insurance for hospitals—a decrease of 27 per cent for those insured by the St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Company and of 67 per cent for those insured by the HCIE.

Although the reasons for the trend toward lower rates for malpractice insurance are complex, generally changes in the reserving practices of the companies to reflect only actual rather than projected losses have contributed significantly to the decline.

The 8.3 per cent decrease for the Inter-Insurance Exchange and Reinsurance Association was an average and the amount of decrease varied by class of physician from zero to 24.3 per cent.

COMPANIES FINED

A fine of $124,000, the largest ever imposed on an insurance company in New Jersey, was assessed against the American Bankers Life Assurance Company of Miami.

The company had been charged with illegally selling accidental death benefit policies through small loan companies and secondary mortgage lenders that were not licensed to sell that kind of insurance.

The company waived a public hearing on the charges and signed an order consenting to the fine. The company also agreed to notify all persons who bought its "Unipay" accidental death benefit policy that they may cancel the policy and receive a 50 per cent return of premium if they so desire.

About 80,000 of the policies have been sold in New Jersey by the company at a total premium of $8 million. Unipay was sold to debtors in addition to regular credit life insurance.

The company further agreed not to continue the policies for sale in New Jersey.

Another insurer, the Midland Insurance Company paid a $79,000 fine that the commissioner had assessed against it, ending an administrative action and litigation that began almost three years ago.

Payment of the fine followed a decision by the Appellate Division of Superior Court upholding the legality of the fine and at the same time clarifying and strengthening the authority of the commissioner to discipline property-casualty insurers for violations of the insurance laws.

The fine was imposed on the company for its failure to pay within a reasonable time forfeited bail bonds on which judgments had been obtained by various counties and municipalities.

The Appellate Court decision was important not only for its affirmation of a substantial fine but also for affirming the approach taken by the Department of Insurance to end what the court called "lax and uneven bail bond collection procedures."

OTHER MATTERS

Responding to an unprecedented outbreak of fires in urban dwellings, particularly in the winter months, the commissioner took steps to improve the ability of the New Jersey Insurance Underwriting Association (FAIR Plan) to deal effectively with the threat of both arson and the accidental burning of properties. He authorized the FAIR Plan to issue five-day notices of cancellation, instead of 30 days. The shorter notice enables the Plan to cancel insurance on properties that have become vulnerable to loss primarily because their rundown conditions make tinderboxes of them and invite either accidental or deliberate burning. At the same time, the FAIR Plan agreed to step up its property inspection program to identify vulnerable tenements. The Plan will make an inspection of apartment houses once a year, instead of every three years.

A provisional rating system for title insurance went into effect July 2, ending years of litigation following enactment of a rating law in 1975.

The rating system filed by the New Jersey Land Title Insurance Rating Bureau, which represents the 19 title insurers in the state, was made provisional because the lack of an existing statistical plan for the collection of data and the diversity of practices among the companies made it impossible to establish a final rate. The collection of claims and expense experience over a minimum period of two years will ultimately permit the promulgation of a final rate.

The Department moved swiftly when an unlicensed entity calling itself the "Somerset Insurance Company" suddenly appeared in New Jersey and operated out of an office in Cherry Hill. An injunction against its continued operation here was obtained from Superior Court and notices of its unlicensed status were sent to all state insurance commissioners. The company was not licensed in New Jersey or, as far as could be determined, in any state or territory of the United States. The company had been incorporated in the Virgin Islands but never applied for, or received, authorization to engage in the business of insurance from the Virgin Islands government. The company had been selling performance and financial guarantee bonds. The matter was referred to the Division of Criminal Justice.
